
Brian C Labosier
Bethel Seminary of the East

DOI: https://doi.org/10.15566/cjgh.v4i1.161

Abstract

Walter Wilson, a professor of New Testament at Candler School of Theology, wrote this book to help us gain new insights on the topic of healing by using a number of different forms of gospel criticism to help us look at the healing miracles in Matthew chapters 8-9. Wilson challenges us to think more broadly and in new categories in our reading of these healing narratives in Matthew.

Author Biography

Brian C Labosier, Bethel Seminary of the East
Professor of Biblical Studies (retired)

Published
2017-03-09

Issue
Vol 4 No 1 (2017): Supplement on health-related education, healing and sustainable development

Section
Book Reviews

Copyright (c) Brian C Labosier

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License.

Christian Journal for Global Health applies the Creative Commons Attribution License to all articles that we publish. Under this license, authors retain ownership of copyright for their articles or they can transfer copyright to their institution, but authors allow anyone without permission to copy, distribute, transmit, and/or adapt
About the Journal

A peer-reviewed, scholarly and multidisciplinary journal on global health policy and practice, promoting evidence-based and thoughtful analysis on effective and innovative approaches to global health from an integrated Christian perspective. Read more here.

Call for Papers

Global Health, Rights and Justice

Make a Submission
Although healing constitutes both a major theme of biblical literature and a significant practice of biblical communities, healing themes and experiences are not always conspicuous in presentations of biblical theology. The author adopts an interdisciplinary approach to the healing narratives in the Gospel of Matthew.